EAB is Hiring!

Associate Director, Research Growth Strategy

Remote

Full-time

Associate Director, Research Growth Strategy, Data Analytics Team

The Research Growth Strategy Group is responsible for supporting strong contract value expansion of existing products and identifying and launching new products and services. Within that, the Data Analytics Team works at the intersection of data, strategy, and storytelling to lead data-based product innovation and insight about the higher education sector. Associate Directors in RGS Data Analytics lead projects to develop products and services for EAB partners that use quantitative analysis, automation, and data-based tools and surveys to deliver value

One part of this role is to develop and maintain a deep, actionable understanding of the “voice of the market” in higher education and of market trends in the sector. This includes anticipating competitive and regulatory changes where EAB can improve its value proposition, analyzing how partners use EAB content to increase utilization and satisfaction, and monitoring competitors to ensure that EAB’s data-based offerings remain unique and compelling.

You will use your understanding of the market and higher education data to create actionable insights and help develop scalable, customizable data-based offerings for partners, ensuring EAB Research stays at the forefront of the industry. You will use programming, data analysis tools, and business intelligence platforms to develop these services. You will interact closely with colleagues on research and delivery teams to understand partner needs, develop product design, and perfect partner use-cases for EAB product content and services.

This role may be based in Washington D.C. or open to remote employment within the continental United States. This position may require occasional travel (10-15%) to office and team in-days as well as to partner college and university campuses for marketing listening experiences.

Primary Responsibilities:

- Serve as a subject matter expert on higher education data and data sources—understanding what’s available, its implications, and how to extract meaningful insights
- Collaborate with internal stakeholders to identify and scope research questions that can be addressed with data analyses
- Develop compelling analyses that translate available data into actionable insights
- Shape findings into clear, visually effective deliverables (slides, reports, presentations)
- Identify research resources that require regular data updates and manage update processes
- Assess how updated data impacts EAB Research’s point of view, and coordinate with relevant subject matter experts to update resources and materials accordingly
- Lead development projects for new, scaled, data-based services, including surveys

- Develop and manage automated tools to streamline data updates and improve turnaround time
- Market-sizing, testing calls and product design analysis for new product launches
